Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 19 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly cloud with patchy rain or drizzle.

Today:
A cloudy morning with rain or drizzle, but some brighter spells possible, especially to the south. Staying murky for much of the region into the afternoon, with cloud and rain then spreading south across all parts by the early evening. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud continuing to affect all areas with patchy rain and drizzle through the evening. Overcast and chilly conditions persisting through the early hours with further rain or drizzle. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Saturday:
Another cloudy morning with outbreaks of rain or drizzle. Gradually becoming brighter from the north during the afternoon, with some early evening sunshine possible. Feeling warmer in brighter spells. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Generally cloudy but mainly dry through Sunday and Monday, some breaks leading to bright or sunny spells. Further sunny periods through Tuesday. Feeling warmer by day but chilly overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.